

Belgium

The map above show predicted concentrations of a reference compound in ditches adjacent to fields where winter wheat is grown (concentrations in $\mu\text{g/l}$).
In the present example, the presence of the compound is assumed to originate from transport by surface runoff and erosion.

